FOUND GUILTY IN FIRST DEGREE

Green and Dillen Must Mount the Gallows.

For the Killing of Turnkey Condo on the Night of July 29th--Jury Was Out 18 Hours.

NEW TRIAL HAS BEEN APPLIED FOR

Reported by W. Harrison Walker and Roger T. Bayard.
At 10 o'clock Thursday morning the court instructed the Sheriff, H. S. Taylor, to bring into court Ira Green and Wm. Dillen who are charged with murder in the first degree.
At a few minutes past ten the prisoners were brought into court by Sheriff Taylor, Deputy Sheriff Jackson and guardman George Eberhart. They were taken into the Grand Jury room where a counseltation was held between them and their attorneys, H. C. Quigley, A. O. Furst and Clement Dale, Esqs.

The court room was crowded with people and the aisles were so filled that no one could force their way from the rear of the room. The court cleared the aisles and stated from the bench that unless the people would make way for jorymen that all who had no seats would have to leave the room.

At the commonwealth's table sat District Attorney Spangler, Ellis L. Orvis Esq. and Col. E. R. Chambers.

By an examination of the Traverse Jury list the name of J. L. Condo of Gregg township appears, significant as it may seem he was a member of the same Jury that is now empaneled to try his murderers.

At ten twenty o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Green, parents of Ira Green together with a daughter and small son came into court and took seats in the bar. They were much affected and sobbed continually. At 10:45 the prisoners with their attorneys H. C. Quigley, A. O. Furst and Clement Dale Esq. took seats at the counsel table. Defendants counsel presented a motion to quash all grand and petit jurors for reason that list of jurors were not certified to by the court and jury commissioners and that no such list was posted in Sheriff's office.

In support of motion counsel for defendants called H. B. Pontius clerk to Jury Commissioners who testified about as follows:

I was present at the filling of wheel for 1904. It was filled the latter part of December 1903, I made a list of jurors for 1904, only one list made. Gave list to Prothonotary Gardner, made no list for Sheriff Taylor. Selected names from people who live in districts of the county, some were given us by several members of the bar. Some of the names on lists given us were used. The Commissioners and myself put names in box alternately.

Don't know if Jury Commissioners went out over the county for list of names.

Sheriff Harry Jackson called and testified that no list of jurors were put in office of Sheriff for 1904 or any other year.

The present venire of jurors is not in office now. It was in office to Monday of this week.

It was kept on Sheriff's desk until 22nd inst. until it was given to the Prothonotary.

Motion was argued by Mr. Dale, for

DEATH CLAIMS

W. F. REEDER

Prominent Bellefonte Attorney Breathes His Last.

AT HOME IN THIS PLACE

Sunday Morning at 12:55 from Hemorrhages of the Lungs—Deputy Attorney General Under Governor Hastings.

HE WILL BE GREATLY MOURNED.

Colonel Wilbur Fisk Reeder, one of the most brilliant attorneys at the Centre County bar, and deputy Attorney General under Gov. Hastings, died at his home on North Allegheny street Sunday morning at 12:55 o'clock of hemorrhages of the lungs after an illness which lasted only since last Thursday noon. Col. Reeder's health had been impaired for some time. In the Spring he had a severe attack of pleuro-pneumonia which left him in a weakened state and his large law practice and business and political interests are believed to have broken him down.

Col. Reeder had several important cases in Court last week, among them being the Rothrock—Constance case and the case of Rev. Victor Zarek, of Clarence, against Dr. R. J. Young charged with perjury. The latter case closed Thursday morning and Col. Reeder, who was Dr. Young's attorney, had the satisfaction of seeing him acquitted. Col. Reeder made one of the finest addresses in defense of Dr. Young, ever heard in the Court House, but his friends noticed that he had a tired, jaded look and he frequently put his hand to his forehead as if in pain. He went home at noon to dinner and complained of the walk up the hill saying that he did not feel well. He started up to the bath room and his son, Wallace, followed him. Just inside the bath room door, he fell, the blood gushing from his mouth and nose. Medical attendance was summoned but he gradually grew weaker until death ensued.

Judge Love, who was visibly affected by the news, announced the death of Col. Reeder from the bench Sunday morning immediately after the verdict in the Green—Dillen murder trial had been received.

In the death of Col. Reeder the community has sustained a loss that is almost irreparable and expressions of general regret and sorrow are heard on all sides at the untimely taking off of this popular and brilliant man.

COL. REEDER'S CAREER.

Wilbur Fisk Reeder was born near Catawissa, Pa., January 7, 1855. He entered Dickinson Seminary at Williamsport, Pa., in 1872 and in 1875 graduated receiving a degree of B. A., and taking the first honors of his class. In the fall of 1875 he came to Bellefonte and commenced reading law with the firm of Bush, Yocum & Hastings, and in May 1877 he was admitted to the bar of Centre County. He at once commenced the practice of law and in 1881 formed a partnership with D. H. Hastings, afterwards Adjutant General and Governor of the State, which continued up until a few years of the latter's death. As a criminal lawyer he made quite a reputation at the trial of Seely Hopkins at Bellefonte, for the murder of his wife and mother-in-law, and in other important cases.

In 1891 he was elected Burgess of Bellefonte and at this time made an excellent record. He was identified with the National Guard for many years, enlisting as a private in Company B, 5th Regiment in 1890. He rose to be first lieutenant of the company and under General Hastings was assistant Adjutant General. Col. Reeder performed active duty at the Homestead and Pottsville strikes and took an active interest in everything pertaining to the organization.

In 1896 he received the county's endorsement for Congress. On September 11, 1897 he was appointed Deputy Attorney General of the State under Gov. Hastings. This appointment was praised on all sides and Col. Reeder filled the position with signal ability. For several years he has been chairman of the Republican county committee and last June was a delegate to the Republican National convention at Chicago which nominated Theodore Roosevelt for President.

On December 19, 1878, Col. Reeder married Miss Lillie S. Gotwalt, who last April was elected State Regent of the Pennsylvania Chapter of the Daughters of the Revolution. They have had one son, John Wallace Reeder.

Col. Reeder was prominent and active mason and had attained to the 22nd degree. He was a Shriner and a member of Constan's Commandery, Knights Templar of Bellefonte. He had been grand marshal of the Pennsylvania Grand Commandery. He was also a member of the staff of Gen. Wiley, commander of the second Brigade of the National Guard.

He was an earnest and faithful member of the St. John's Episcopal church of this place and a vestryman and lay reader in the church.

Sad and impressive were the funeral services Wednesday afternoon over the remains of the late Wilbur Fisk Reeder, brilliant attorney and former state official. From all parts of Centre County and the state came men, prominent in all walks of life to pay a last tribute of respect to Bellefonte's distinguished citizen.

LYING IN STATE.

From five o'clock Tuesday afternoon until Wednesday noon the remains lay in state in the north parlor of the Reeder residence on North Allegheny street, surrounded by the many beautiful floral tributes of loving friends and admirers. Hundreds of people from the humblest to richest viewed the remains lying in state and as if peacefully sleeping and natural as when in life. Many eyes were seen to be filled with tears as they looked upon all that was mortal of Wilbur F. Reeder.

MEETING OF BAR ASSOCIATION. Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock there was a meeting of the Centre County Bar Association presided over by Judge Love. There was a large attendance of members of the bar and citizens and eloquent opening remarks were made by Hon. John G. Love. The report of the committee on Resolutions was read by J. C. Meyer Esq. E. L. Orvis seconded the adoption of the report. Eloquent addresses were made by Hon. S. R. Peale, David F. Fortney, Col. John I. Rogers, Hon. A. O. Furst, Hon. A. A. Stevens, Hon. Lyman D. Gilbert.

FUNERAL SERVICES.

The funeral services were held at 2 o'clock in St. John's Episcopal church and were conducted by Rev. George Israel Brown, the rector, who spoke in a beautiful manner of the life and characteristics of the deceased. Previous to the services at the church there was prayer at the house. The funeral was in charge of the masonic fraternity and there was a guard of Knights Templar from Constan's Commandery. The services at the grave were in charge of the Masons.

thought she was a little frivolous at the German ambassador's ball. But I had no idea she would take my sharp speeches so much to heart. I had no idea that she would care so much or that I should care so much. A little jealousy is certainly pardonable in a bridegroom, and if her mind had not already been upset she would have remembered how I loved her and hopefully waited for a reconciliation."

"You did love your wife, then? It was you and not she who had a right to be jealous? I have heard the contrary stated. It is a matter of public gossip that you loved another woman previous to your acquaintance with Miss Moore, a woman whom your wife—Miss Tuttle?" Mr. Jeffrey stopped in his walk to fling out this ejaculation. "I admire and respect Miss Tuttle, but I went on to declare, 'but I never loved her—not as I did my wife,' he finished, but with a certain hard accent, apparent enough to a sensitive ear.

"Pardon me, it is as difficult for me to put these questions as it is for you to hear them—were you and Miss Tuttle ever engaged?"

I started. This was a question which half of Washington had been asking itself for the last three months.

Would Mr. Jeffrey answer it, or, remembering that these questions were rather friendly than official, refuse to satisfy a curiosity which he might well consider intrusive? The set aspect of his features promised little in the way of information, and we were both surprised when a moment later he responded with a grim emphasis hardly to be expected from one of his impulsive temperaments.

"Unhappily, no. My attentions never went so far."

Instantly the coroner pounced on the one word which Mr. Jeffrey had let fall.

"Unhappily?" he repeated. "Why do you say 'unhappily'?"

Mr. Jeffrey flushed and seemed to come out of some dream.

"Did I say 'unhappily'?" he inquired. "Well, I repeat it—Miss Tuttle would never have given me any cause for jealousy."

The coroner bowed and for the present dropped her name out of the conversation.

"You speak again of the jealousy aroused in you by your wife's impetuosity. Was this increased or diminished by the tone of the few lines she left behind?"

The response was long in coming. It was hard for this man to lie. The struggle he made at it was pitiful. As I noted what it cost him, I began to have new and curious thoughts concerning him and the whole matter under discussion.

"I shall never overcome the remorse roused in me by those few lines," he finally rejoined. "She showed a consideration for me!"

"What?"

The coroner's exclamation showed all the surprise he felt. Mr. Jeffrey tottered under it, then grew slowly pale, as if only through our amazed looks he had come to realize the charge of inconsistency to which he had laid himself open.

"I mean," he endeavored to explain, "that Mrs. Jeffrey showed an unexpected tenderness toward me by taking all the blame of our misunderstanding upon herself. It was generous of her and will do much toward making my memory of her a gentle one."

He was forgetting himself again. Indeed his manner and attempted explanations were full of contradictions. To emphasize this fact Coroner Z. exclaimed:

"I should think so! She paid a heavy penalty for her professed lack of love. You believe that her mind was unseated?"

"Does not her action show it?"

"Unseated by the mishap occurring at her marriage?"

"Yes."

"You really think that?"

"Yes."

"By anything that passed between you?"

"Yes."

"May I ask you to tell us what passed between you on this point?"

"Yes."

He had uttered the monosyllable so often it seemed to come unconsciously from his lips. But he recognized almost as soon as we did that it was not a natural reply to the last question, and, making a gesture of apology, he added, with the same monotony of tone which had characterized these replies:

"She spoke of her strange guest's unaccountable death more than once, and whenever she did so it was with an unnatural excitement and in an unbalanced way. This was so noticeable to us all that the subject presently was tabooed among us, but though she henceforth spared us all allusion to it she continued to talk about the house itself and of the previous deaths which had occurred there till we were forced to forbid that topic also. She was never really herself after crossing the threshold of this desolate house to be married. The shadow which lurks within its walls fell at that instant upon her life. May God have mercy!"

The prayer remained unfinished. His head, which had fallen on his breast, sank lower.

He presented the aspect of one who is quite done with life, even its sorrows.

But men in the position of Coroner Z. cannot afford to be compassionate. Everything the bereaved man said deepened the impression that he was acting a part. To make sure that this was really so the coroner, with just the slightest touch of sarcasm, quietly observed:

"And to ease your wife's mind—the wife you were so deeply angered with—you visited this house and, at an hour which you should have spent in reconciliation with her, went through its ancient rooms in the hope of what?"

Mr. Jeffrey could not answer. The words which came from his lips were mere ejaculations.

"I was restless, mad. I found this adventure diverting. I had no real purpose in mind."

"Not when you looked at the old picture?"

"The old picture in the southwest chamber. You took a look at that, didn't you—got up on a chair on purpose to do so?"

Mr. Jeffrey winced, but he made a direct reply.

"Yes; I gave a look at that old picture; got up, as you say, on a chair to do so. Wasn't that the freak of an idle man, wandering, he hardly knows why, from room to room in an old and deserted house?"

His tormentor did not answer. Probably his mind was on his next line of inquiry. But Mr. Jeffrey did not take his silence with the calmness he had shown prior to the last attack. As no word came from his unweildy guest, he paused in his rapid pacing and, casting aside with one impulsive gesture his hitherto imperfectly held restraint, he cried out sharply:

"Why do you ask me these questions in tones of such suspicion? Is it not plain enough that my wife took her own life under a misapprehension of my state of mind toward her? Why should you feel it necessary to rake up these personal matters, which, however interesting to the world at large, are of a painful nature to me?"

"Mr. Jeffrey," retorted the other, with a sudden grave assumption of dignity not without its effect in a case of such serious import, "we do nothing without purpose. We ask these questions and show this interest because the charge of suicide which has hitherto been made against your wife is not entirely sustained by the facts. At least she was not alone when she took her life. Some one was in the house with her."

It was startling to observe the effect of this declaration upon him.

"Impossible!" he cried out in a protest as forcible as it was agonized. "You are playing with my misery. She could have had no one there; she would not. There is not a man living before whom she would have fled that deadly shot unless it was myself—unless it was my own wretched, miserable self."

The remorseful whisper in which those final words were uttered carried them to my heart, which for some strange and unaccountable reason had been gradually turning toward this man. But my less easily affected companion, seeing his opportunity and possibly considering that it was this gentleman's right to know in what a doubtful light he stood before the law, remarked with as light a touch of irony as was possible:

"You should know better than we in whose presence she would choose to die—if she did so choose; also who would be likely to tie the pistol to her wrist and blow out the candle when the dreadful deed was over."

The laugh which seemed to be the only means of violent expression remaining to this miserable man was kept down by some amazing thought which seemed to paralyze him. Without making any attempt to refute a suggestion that fell just short of a personal accusation, he sank down in the first chair he came to and became, as it were, lost in the vision of that ghastly ribbon tying and the solitary blowing out of the candle upon this scene of mournful death. Then, with a struggling sense of having heard something which called for answer, he rose blindly to his feet and managed to let fall these words:

"You are mistaken. No one was there, or, if any one was, it was not I. There is a man in this city who can prove it. But when Mr. Jeffrey was asked to give the name of this man he showed confusion and presently was obliged to admit that he could neither recall his name nor remember anything about him, but that he was some one whom he knew well and who knew him well. He affirmed that the two had met and spoken near Soldiers' home shortly after the sun went down and that the man would be sure to remember this meeting if we could only find him."

As Soldiers' home was several miles from the Moore house and quite out of the way of all his accustomed haunts. Coroner Z. asked him how he came to be there. He replied that he had just come from the Rock Creek cemetery; that he had been in a wretched state of mind all day, and, possibly being influenced by what he had heard of the yearly vigils Mr. Moore was in the habit of keeping there, had taken a notion to stroll among the graves in search of the rest and peace of mind he had failed to find in his aimless walks about the city. At least, that was the way he chose to account for the meeting he mentioned. Falling into reverie again, he seemed to be trying to recall the name which at this moment was of such importance to him. But it was without avail, as he presently acknowledged.

"I cannot remember who it was. My brain is whirling, and I can recollect nothing but that this man and myself left the cemetery together on the night mentioned, just as the gate was being closed. As it closes at sundown, the hour can be fixed to a minute. It was somewhere near 7, I believe; near enough, I am sure, for I to have been impossible for me to be at the Moore house at the time my unhappy wife is supposed to have taken her life. There is no doubt about your believing this?" he demanded with sudden haughtiness, as, rising to his feet, he confronted us in all the pride of his exceptionally handsome person.

"We wish to believe it," assented the coroner, rising in his turn. "That our belief may become certainty will you let us know, the instant you recall it, the name of the man you talked with at the cemetery gate? His testimony, far more than any word of yours, will settle this question which otherwise may prove a vexed one."

Mr. Jeffrey's hand went up to his head. Was he acting a part or did he really forget just what it was for his own best welfare to remember? If he had forgotten, it argued that he was in a state of greater disturbance on that night than would naturally be occasioned by a mere lover's quarrel with his wife.

Did the same thought strike my companion? I cannot say. I can only give you his next words:

"You have said that your wife would not be likely to end her life in presence of any one but yourself. Yet you must see that some one was with her. How do you propose to reconcile your assertions with a fact so undeniable?"

"I cannot reconcile them. It would madden me to try. If I thought any one was with her at that moment!"

"Well?"

Mr. Jeffrey's eyes fell, and a startling change passed over him. But before either of us could make out just what this change betokened he recovered his aspect of fixed melancholy and quietly remarked:

"It is dreadful to think of her standing there alone, aiming a pistol at her young, passionate heart, but it is worse to picture her doing this under the gaze of unsympathizing eyes. I cannot and will not so picture her. You have been misled by appearances or what in police parlance is called a 'clew.'"

Evidently he did not mean to admit the possibility of the pistol having been fired by any other hand than her own. This the coroner noted. Bowing with the respect he showed every man before a jury had decided upon his guilt, he turned toward the door out of which I had already hurried.

"We hope to hear from you in the morning," he called back significantly as he stepped down the stairs.

Mr. Jeffrey did not answer; he was having his first struggle with the new and terrible prospect awaiting him at the approaching inquest.

CHAPTER XI.

THE days of my obscurity were over. Henceforth I was regarded as a decided factor in this case—a case which from this time on assumed another aspect both at headquarters and in the minds of people at large. The reporters, whom we had hitherto managed to hold in check, now overflowed both the coroner's office and police headquarters, and articles appeared in all the daily papers with just enough suggestion in them to fire the public mind and make me, for one, anticipate an immediate word from the law. I calculated to establish the alibi he had failed to make out on the day we talked with him. But no such word came. His memory still played him false, and no alternative was left but to pursue the official inquiry in the line suggested by the interview just recounted.

No proceeding in which I had ever been engaged interested me as did this inquest. In the first place, the spectators were of a very different character from the ordinary. As I wormed myself along to the seat accorded to such witnesses as myself I brushed by men of the very highest station and a few of the lowest and bent my head more than once in response to the inquiring gaze of some fashionable lady who never before, I warrant, had found herself in such a scene. By the time I reached my place all the others were seated, and the coroner rapped for order.

I was first to take the stand. What I said has already been fully amplified in the foregoing pages. Of course, my evidence was confined to facts, but some of these facts were new to most of the persons there. It was evident that a considerable effect was produced by them, not only on the spectators, but upon the witnesses themselves. For instance, it was the first time that the marks on the mantelshelf had been heard of outside the major's office or the story so told as to make it evident that Mrs. Jeffrey could not have been alone in the house at the time of her death.

A photograph had been taken of those marks, and my identification of this photograph closed my testimony.

As I returned to my seat I stole a look toward a certain corner where, with face bent down upon his hand, Francis Jeffrey sat between Uncle David and the heavily veiled figure of Miss Tuttle.

I was followed by the other detectives who had been present at the time and who corroborated my statement as to the appearance of this unhappy woman and the way the pistol had been tied to her arm. Then the doctor who had acted under the coroner was called. After a long and no doubt learned description of the bullet wound which had ended the life of this unhappy lady—a wound which he insisted, with a marked display of learning, must have made that end instantaneous or at least too immediate for her to move foot or hand after it—he was asked if the body showed any other mark of violence.

To this he replied:

"There was a minute wound at the base of one of her fingers, the one which is popularly called the wedding finger."

This statement made all the women present stare with renewed interest; nor was it altogether without point for the men, especially when the doctor went on to say:

"The hands were entirely without rings. As Mrs. Jeffrey had been married with a ring, I noticed their absence."

"Was this wound which you characterize as minute a recent one?"

"It had bled a little. It was an abrasion such as would be made if the ring she usually wore there had been drawn off with a jerk. That was the impression I received from its appearance. I do not state that it was so made."

A little thrill went over the audience at the picture this evoked communicated itself to Miss Tuttle, who trembled violently. It even produced a slight display of emotion in Mr. Jeffrey, whose hand shook where he pressed it against his forehead. But neither uttered a sound nor looked up when the next witness was summoned.

This witness proved to be Loretta, who, on hearing her name called, evinced great reluctance to come forward. After the coroner had elicited her name and the position she held in Mr. Jeffrey's household he asked whether her duties took her into Mrs. Jeffrey's room. Upon her replying that they did, he further inquired if she knew Mrs. Jeffrey's rings, and could say whether they were all to be found on that lady's toilet table after the police came in with news of her death. The answer was decisive. They were all there; her rings and all the other ornaments she was in the daily habit of wearing, with the exception of her watch. That was not there.

"Did you take up those rings?"

"No, sir."

"Did you see any one else take them up?"

"No, sir; not till the officer did so."

"Very well, Loretta. Sit down again till we hear what Durbin has to say about these rings."

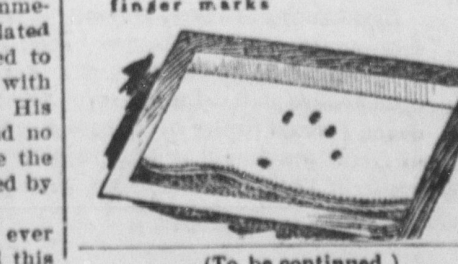

And then the man I hated came forward, and, though I shrink from acknowledging it even to myself, I could not observe how strong and quiet and self-possessed he seemed and how decisive was his testimony.

But it was equally brief. He had taken up the rings and he had looked at them; and on one, the wedding ring, he had detected a slight stain of blood. He had called Mr. Jeffrey's attention to it, but that gentleman had made no comment.

This remark had the effect of concentrating general attention upon Mr. Jeffrey. But he seemed quite oblivious of it; his attitude remained unchanged, and only from the quick stretching out and withdrawal of Miss Tuttle's hand could it be seen that anything had been said calculated to touch or arouse this man. The coroner cast an uneasy glance in his direction; then he motioned Durbin aside and recalled Loretta.

And now I began to be sorry for the girl. It is hard to have one's weaknesses exposed, especially if one is more foolish than wicked. But there was no way of letting this girl off with-

Narrow Chests.

The old theory that consumption was inherited is utterly discredited by modern medical science. The germs of consumption must be received from without. These germs are everywhere. They are constantly being received and cast out by the healthy system.

It is the narrow chested whose inheritance is weakness who fall a prey to consumption because they are too weak of lung to resist and throw off disease.

Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes weak lungs strong. It cures obstinate deep-seated coughs, bleeding lungs, weakness, emaciation and other conditions which if neglected or unskillfully treated find a fatal termination in consumption.

$3,000 FORFEIT will be paid by the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y., if they cannot show the original signature of the individual volunteering the testimonial below, and also of the writers of every testimonial among the thousands which they are constantly publishing, thus proving their genuineness.

"In the spring of 1900 I was taken with hemorrhage of the lungs, and became very weak and short of breath, lost flesh and had no appetite," writes Mr. E. L. Robinson of Xerxes, Tenn. "I was persuaded to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The first few bottles seemed to do me but little good. I thought I would soon be a victim of that dreaded disease, consumption. Had almost given up in despair when my friends persuaded me to give your 'Golden Medical Discovery' a fair trial. I commenced its use. I weigh 160 pounds now and when I commenced I only weighed 140 pounds. If any one doubts this statement I will be pleased to answer any inquiry."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." Nothing is "just as good."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse the clogged system from impurities.

MUST LOOK TO CONGRESS

Pennsylvania's Interests Have Much at Stake at Next Election.

AGGRESSIVE FIGHT TO BE MADE

A United States Senator and Thirty-two Representatives to the House Who Will Vote On Tariff Legislation Will Be Chosen.

[Special Correspondence.]

Harrisburg, Aug. 23.—Naturally interest centres here in the selection of members of the general assembly, as the next legislature, which meets here in January next, will be called upon to elect a United States senator for the full term of six years to succeed Governor Pennypacker's appointee, Philander Knox.

Among the nominees for the senate and the house who have been placed in the field already are many new candidates, and there is considerable speculation regarding the outcome of the contests in several districts.

The election of a stalwart Republican to the United States senate is of paramount importance to the vast industrial and other interests of Pennsylvania, as is also the matter of the election of Republican candidates for the national house of representatives.

The election of candidates for the legislature, who will have a vote on the United States senatorship, and the access of Republican nominees in the congressional districts in this state will occupy the attention of the party leaders from now until the 8th of November next, when the ballots will be cast and counted.

Senator Penrose, as chairman of the Republican state committee, will give personal attention to this phase of the campaign, and he will have the hearty co-operation of every loyal member of the Republican organization throughout the state.

The fight for the election of these candidates will be made upon clean-cut lines, and will be aggressive from the start.

The voters of Pennsylvania will have impressed upon them the fact that the Democracy has ever been antagonistic to the Pennsylvania idea of the protective tariff, and that it is vitally essential that the Republican majorities in both branches of congress shall be maintained, in order that the great manufacturing interests, the vast army of industrial workers and the millions upon millions of capital invested, shall be kept free from harmful legislation at Washington.

In some respects, Republican loss of congress would be more disastrous to Pennsylvania's interests than the loss of the presidency.

It is pointed out that the Republicans have a majority of less than 30 in the present house of representatives and that a change of 15 votes would give the house to the Democrats.

It is known that the Democrats are figuring upon gains in the congressional districts of Pennsylvania.

Colonel Guffey and his associates in the management of the Democratic machine have been boasting to the Tammany leaders in New York that they will have a gain of half a dozen congressmen in this state, and they have persuaded the party managers to put up a liberal campaign fund to put their plans into operation.

They are talking of carrying the Luzerne, Lackawanna and Schuylkill districts in the anthracite coal regions, and are predicting as absolutely certain to go Democratic the York-Adams district, the Berks-Lehigh district, the Northampton-Monroe-Pike-Carbon district and the Northumberland-Columbia-Montour district, and one or two others.

The Democrats are always hopeful, particularly in national campaigns, but this time they seem to be unusually aggressive. This fact has made the Republican leaders determined to leave nothing undone to rouse the Republican committeemen and others throughout the commonwealth and have them put forward their best efforts to thwart the Democratic plans.

Colonel Wesley R. Andrews, who is in charge at the Republican state headquarters in Philadelphia during the temporary absence of Chairman Penrose, wrote to a friend in this city a few days ago saying that it is Senator Penrose's intention to work to offset every move of the Democracy and to labor to keep their representation down to the lowest point possible.

The Democrats now have three members of the house from Pennsylvania—Kline, of Lehigh; Schull, of Monroe; and Dickerson, of Northumberland.

Senator Penrose believes that he will be able to hold them down to three members, and he may succeed in cutting them down to two.

This will require a vast amount of work and the expenditure of much energy in lining up the party workers to get the Republican voters out on election day.

The greatest danger to the Republican cause will be in the apathy of the voters. It is difficult to make Republicans in Pennsylvania believe that there is any Democratic party in this state, but time and again the minority party has succeeded in electing members of congress through Republican indifference or over-confidence.

A LETTER FROM ROME.

Richard Brouse on the School Ship Saratoga Writes to His Parents.

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Brouse have received another letter from their son, Richard, who is with the School Ship "Saratoga." This letter is dated from Rome and is even more interesting than the last one we published.

Hotel Ligure, Vallini.

Rome Aug. 14, 04.

My Dear Mother and Father,

We arrived in Naples, Aug. 12, after being out 15 days we did not have any stormy weather, but had a number of calms.

We arrived at Naples about 8 o'clock p. m., and worked till 1 a. m., we then turned in till 6 o'clock, when we commenced to clean the ship, in the afternoon the Star board watch got liberty, and we took down the sails and painted the spars. The next afternoon our watch got liberty from 1 to half past five, during the day the boat was full of Dagoes selling all kinds of stuff.

On a bill in Naples I saw "See Naples and then Die" but I would rather die first than see Naples again, talk about dirt I never saw such a dirty hole. The streets are all paved but they are covered with about two feet of dirt, you see the Dagoes lying all around the streets and the children running around without a speck of clothing on. There are some very fine buildings, especially the Kings palace, also some very fine statues. I cannot tell you much about Naples as I spent three days at Rome, I would like to go to Pompei and Vesuvius I know how you envy me seeing Rome.

We left Naples at 6 o'clock for Rome and got here at 7 in the evening, we traveled third class, and were packed in like cattle, and they stopped at every fence post, they certainly do have a fine station but it does not come up to the one at Broad St. Phila., after wondering about for two hours trying to find a hotel we finally got a cabby to show us to one, it is a very nice one and we get good meals, at a rather cheap price, after we had our supper we went to some places of interest. The next morning we took a carriage and went to the Colosseum we went all through this and saw where they used to keep the lions, the prisoners and where the kings and senators were seated you can't see so much of the old place as they have it all fixed up with brick, we saw the remains of Nero's garden, which is just opposite, and a little piece of a pillar, left of his golden palace. The triumphant arch stands close by and it is exactly like the picture we have.

The Vatican and St. James Cathedral we also saw. I cannot tell you much about St. James as everyone ought to see it for themselves. The same may be said of St. Paul's it is grand, it is made of marble taken from different parts of the world. In St. James there is a statue of him and the people kiss his foot, and it has been kissed so much there is no foot left.

We were out the Appian way and saw the bath houses. One of the finest buildings is the Museum, it is filled with all kinds of paintings and statues, all of the original busts of the great men of Rome are there. There is a lot of a statue there. The rest of it was never found that would not go in our dining room at home you can imagine the size of it, over the walls are tablets of stone with writing on them. In the museum there is a big brass horse, Caesar had made in honor of his favorite horse. There are thousands of statues in here some of them are grand.

We next went to the Catacombs, which are 40 ft under the ground, we saw the places where the people were buried and where St. Paul prayed. This is the place where so much of Quia Vadis was taken from. I am in a hurry to close as they are at supper. I know you would like to hear more of the places we have been too but I will write more of it on our way to Algiers. Good Bye.

Your Loving Son

RICHARD BROUSE

P. S. Who would have thought I would ever see Rome.

Ghosts would frighten many people who are not afraid of germs. Yet the germ is a real danger. If this microscopic animal could be magnified to a size in proportion to its deadliness it would show like a giant python, or fire breathing dragon. The one fact to remember is that the germ is powerless to harm the body when it is pure. It is far easier to keep the germ out than to drive it out after it obtains a hold in the system. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the most powerful and perfect of blood purifying medicines. It increases the quantity as well as the quality of the blood, and enables the body to resist disease, or to throw it off if disease has obtained a footing in some weak organ. Wherever the digestion is impaired, the nutrition of the body is diminished, for the blood is made from the food which is eaten, and half digested food can not supply the body with blood in quantity and quality adequate to its needs. For this condition there is no remedy equal to "Golden Medical Discovery." It cures persons who give it a fair trial. When there is constipation Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets will promptly relieve and permanently cure.

COLONEL WILBUR F. REEDER.

Every city, town and community has its periodical sudden losses in the death of its most prominent business and professional men, as well as other citizens. Within the past two years Bellefonte seems to have had more than its proportionate share of loss from its professional ranks, especially so in the legal profession. But among the quintette or more attorneys who have been so suddenly called hence there was perhaps none more widely known, more highly respected and encircled with a brighter future for usefulness than was the late Col. Wilbur F. Reeder, whose life cord was so suddenly snapped asunder at the early hour of Sunday last.

When we speak and write of Colonel Reeder it is about a gentleman who had always been found in the front ranks of his chosen profession, at the head of all movements for the improvement of the community in which he resided and the populace therein, and, best of all, when it came to the church and Sunday school no more earnest and ardent advocate of the Lord's cause could be found anywhere. The Episcopal church and Sunday school of Bellefonte has lost a champion and supporter whose place it will be far more than ordinarily difficult to fill. He was active and unceasing in his christian work because he enjoyed laboring in the Master's vineyard and because he considered it a duty which every true believer in a judgment to come, owed to an all-wise creator.

The legal profession of Centre county and the state at large, for that matter, has lost a practitioner who was always an honor to its ranks and who assisted largely in placing the Bellefonte bar to the top pinnacle of enviable reputation which it enjoys today all over the Commonwealth.

Socially no brighter star could be desired, Col. Reeder was always the same genial gentleman, no matter where or under what circumstances you met him. No matter how deeply engrossed in professional or even political duties, he never lacked for the kindest of kind words to those whom he met either at his office, in the court room, at his pleasant home, on the street, in the executive halls of the state or wherever it may have been. Such men as Col. Reeder are far fewer in number than we ordinarily imagine. It is more particularly noticeable after they have left us, never to return.

Let the reader of this sit down for a few moments—yes, considerably longer—and cast his mental vision over the field of this whole county and who will you select as being able to in every respect fill the place made vacant by Wilbur F. Reeder. A true mental comparison of this kind oftentimes enables us to truly and truthfully estimate the real, genuine worth and work of those who are so suddenly called to their reward.

Not only as an individual, but also by virtue of the important official position which he so acceptably and so successfully filled for some years, the Republican party of Centre county has lost a champion whose worth and work wielded a vast influence among the very best class of people.

Summing up the sad occasion, we cannot for an instant conceal the fact that there was but one Wilbur F. Reeder and that in the battle of social, professional and christian existence it is extremely questionable whether at any particular time or ever a man arises in this community capable in all its phases of usefulness to fill his place. The many and glowing tributes so feelingly paid to his memory at the memorial exercises in the Court House Wednesday forenoon, and the deep solemnity attending the funeral obsequies in the afternoon are as but a whisper to the real worth of the subject in question.

To the bereaved widow and all the numerous friends we extend the most profound condolence in this their sad affliction. At the same time it is but proper to call their attention to the fact, that if there is a peaceful reward in the hereafter for those who lead exemplary, useful and christian lives while temporary-ly sojourning here below, the subject of this sketch is today really far better cared for than those who mourn his sudden demise.

This is a consolation worthy of much more than ordinary consideration.

OUR BULLETIN SERVICE.

The Bellefonte Republican through a bulletin service informed the people of Centre County of the sad death of Col. Reeder and the conviction of Green and Dillen, twelve hours ahead of any other service and people throughout the county are praising the Republican for its enterprise.

HOW IT WAS DONE.

Immediately after the jury came in with the verdict on Sunday morning a bulletin was prepared as follows:

BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN BULLETIN: Col. Wilbur F. Reeder died at 12:55 this morning. Funeral Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Green and Dillen, the slayers of Jerry Condo, were convicted of murder in the first degree after the jury had been out nineteen hours. Eight ballots were taken seven on Saturday and one Sunday morning. The first ballot stood six for first degree and six for second degree.

Judge Furst appeals for new trial. The news was grabbed up eagerly by the people. The telephones in the Republican office were brought into play and every town and hamlet in the county was notified and in the most conspicuous places the bulletins were posted where the most people could see them.

The following is the list of places where bulletins were posted:

It was just at noon time and a great surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Decker. Mrs. Decker was up to her shoulders in the doughnut and Mr. Decker was just coming in from the fields to dinner when the guests arrived. As soon as the boxes could be unpacked there was a gathering around the table and a great feast followed. Toasts were called for but everyone was too busy eating to respond.

The company consisted of the children and grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Decker. Among those present were: Seward, Altoona; Alice, of Potters Mills; Ella and Martha, of Bellefonte; Homer, Edith, Maud, Luenetta, Eddy, Wilber, Helen, Dorathea, James, of Pine Grove Mills; Logan and Harvey at home.

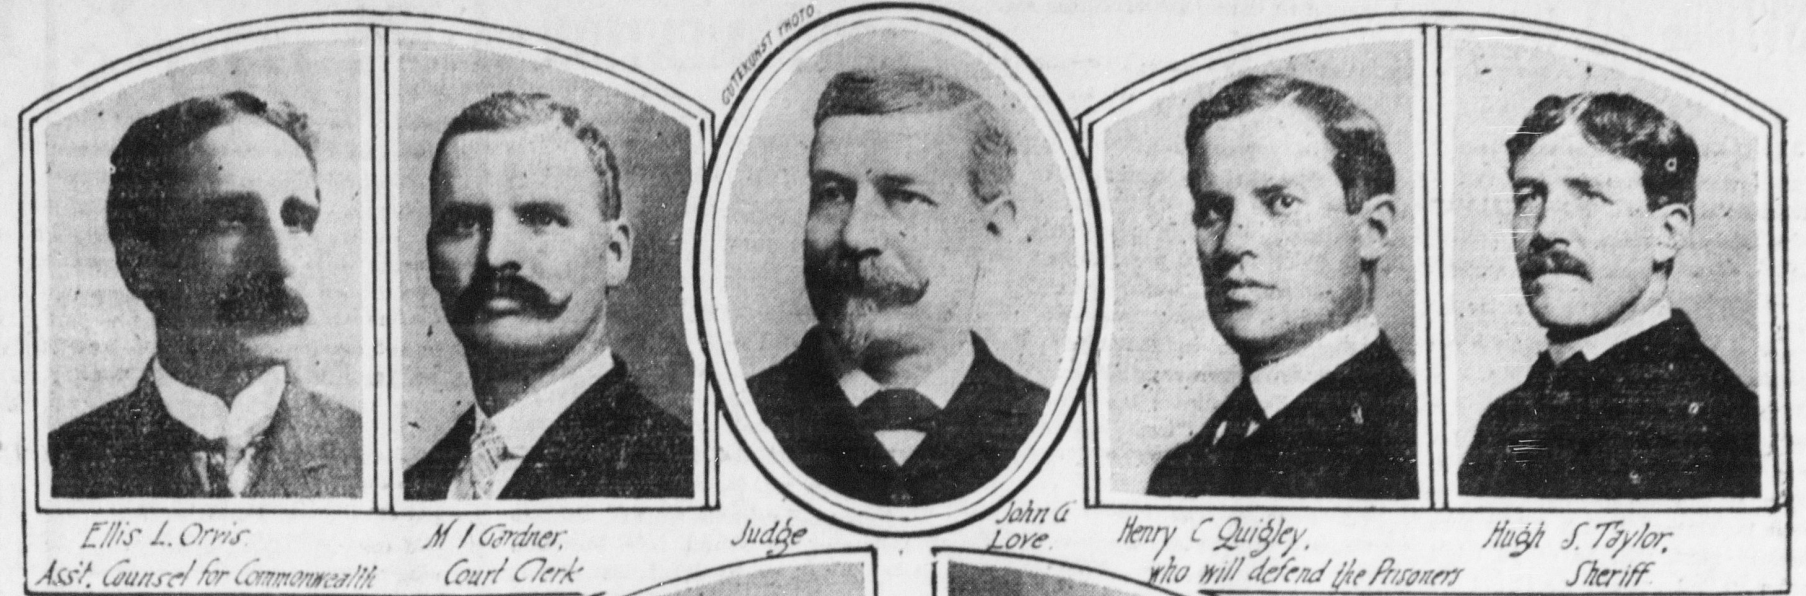

The latter took the guest to meadow after dinner for a game of ball and to see James jump after the ball was amusing.

Putting in the afternoon in this way supper was served, then Homer and Logan promised a treat in the way of circus performance. After the guests were all seated and ready to be entertained, the animal was brought out of its stall on to the green, but he was so ashamed he would not heed his masters bidding; he would go up in front but not behind, and finally when very much urged to show off he laid down and hid his face. The next was a sight; it was Maud coaxing her mamma for the bottle, Maud is a cripple but very bright. If she had the right use of her limbs would be a very strong child. She can sing backwards as well as any other way. The balance of the evening was spent by Homer at the organ and the ladies singing. The drum and life was in use the greater part of the evening, you would have supposed their grandfather Faust had come again, everybody knew George Faust to be a drummer.

Started to call jury at 1:30 and did not finish until 6:15.

FRIDAY MORNING

At about 7:30 many interested people began filing the steps leading to the court room while the doors were not opened until 8:40, the jury came in at 8:30 in charge of Thomas McCadery assisted by James Mullen and Vincent Beckwith. When the doors were opened at 8:40 it took but about one and a half minutes to fill every seat available in the court room. No one is admitted by way of the rear entrance except the officers of the court, county officials, members of the bar, witnesses and prisoners.

At 9 o'clock court opened with Hon. Jno. G. Love on the bench and the Attorneys for the commonwealth at the counsel table. At a few minutes past nine the attorneys for defendants took their places at the counsel table. The prisoners were brought into court by Sheriff Taylor, Deputy Sheriff Jackson and guardsmen Geo. Eberhart.

Wm. Dillen was pale and seemed to take the trial as a serious matter while Green was the opposite, paying no attention whatever to the proceedings, Ellis L. Orvis Esq., one of the counsel for commonwealth opened the case before jury. He spoke of the solemnity of a murder trial and the trial of the prisoners at the bar, discussing the facts in a clear and logical manner. He also stated that no one interested in the trial of the case, whether judge, jury or attorneys were responsible for what would follow as it was the law of the commonwealth, and that the parties in interest in the case were simply parties put in their present places as required by the laws of the commonwealth. Mr. Orvis described fully the interior of the jail stating where Dillen and Green were confined, that the commonwealth would prove by disinterested witnesses that Green and Dillen made threats against Jerry Condo that they would kill him. Prisoners were confined in steel cell No 8 and Henderson and Constance in cell No 7 and all escaped.

Described the instruments used by prisoners to kill Condo.

Stated that Condo never gained consciousness after assault was made; that blood flowed from his ears and mouth, described route of prisoners after leaving jail, that Green and Dillen carried with them the deadly instruments, they dragged the irons about the middle of the outer wall of the jail, Mr. Orvis spoke for 35 minutes.

COMMONWEALTH CALLS WITNESSES

J. H. Wetzel, Bellefonte, surveyor was first witness called on behalf of Commonwealth made draft of interior of county jail, explained draft fully to the jury. No 7 and 8 are the two steel cells in the jail. The bath room is on first floor, first room to the right as you enter the jail.

At this time Ira Greens wife entered the court room and proceeded to her husbands side weeping as though her heart would break. The crowd gave way for her, and she began kissing him and calling him endearing names. The incident seemed to have a little effect on the audience but not with the jury. Green himself was affected and for the first time since his imprisonment he broke down and wept.

Explained by draft the blood stains on the floor of the jail, where Condo fell etc., didn't know where the prisoners were confined except what he heard, there are 16 steps from first floor, to second floor the distance from where Condo fell to the steps was seven feet, made map of outside of jail shows residences etc., on East High street near jail. The star on second map shows where irons were dropped by prisoners, the distance from front door of jail to where irons were dropped is 135 feet, made draft on Aug. 20, made draft of interior of jail Aug. 5.

Harry J. Jackson, Deputy Sheriff, called and examined by Mr. Orvis, have been Deputy Sheriff about eight years, knew interior of jail very well, all cells have iron doors, all doors are kept locked in jail, there are iron beds in all cells, Dillen and Green were in cell No eight, iron bedsteads in cell were painted white, the beds in all other cells were painted green, Geo. Kline, McKee and Edward McCullough, Livingston, Constance and Henderson were the other prisoners in jail at the time of murder, cells No 7 and 8 were locked all the time and other prisoners were allowed to go around incorridors as they saw fit, I saw Jerry Condo about 4 or 5 o'clock July 29th, he was in good health, Jerry Condo had entire charge of the jail to look after them, give them their meals, had entire charge of prisoners, I saw him at about 9 o'clock same day, when I came up to the jail I found Condo on a bed on stairs and asked Condo what was the trouble, he said "I want to go to bed," these were the last words he ever uttered. Dr. Feldt was in charge of Jerry when I came to the jail, Jerry lived in the resident part of the jail his family lived at Spring Mills. The Sheriff then described the cell No eight, two hinges on inner door both doors locked, saw cell after prisoners escaped, the upper hinge had been released by reason of small pin being broken. It was forced back at the top, the lower hinge was in its normal condition except at top, did not see Condo in jail after he had been assaulted, I saw pool of blood on jail floor, could see marks of Condo's hands on floor where he was knocked down. Floor stained for quite a distance around, saw irons, McCullough brought in irons and gave them to myself and the sheriff, the irons were placed in safe in jail, one iron is brace of iron bed, the other is a foot-ol folding iron bed about 14 inches long and small iron on top making a "T" (te) shape, I examined bedsteads in cell No 8 after the escape of prisoners. The irons used fitted on beds in prisoners rooms, the short iron was inside of a stocking, the irons were produced and shown witnesses, and identified as the irons used in the murder of Jerry Condo.

CROSS EXAMINATION OF WITNESS

The sheriff was at camp with Co. B. McCullough is an inmate of the jail, never weighed the pieces of irons, the pad lock on cell No 8 was not opened or broken. I examined cell No 8 the same evening of the escape, wooden spoons and forks and knives were given to eat with, I am no expert blood analysis but the next morning after found the foot of the stocking was still moist, I do not know whether it rained or not the night before.

Edward B. McCullough—I am 27 years old, my home at Clearfield, Co., have been in jail over a year, was in jail on the night of July 29th last, while I was in jail became acquainted with Rice, Coffey, he said he didn't know who all were in jail, Geo. Kline was my cell mate, was working out at the stable all day, did not come in until about 8 o'clock, Jerry Condo went in the jail first, I went first up the stairway, didn't see a soul Jerry was close behind me, saw two men come out of the bath room, they were Dillen and Green, was standing at the top of the stairs, Jerry was coming up the stairs, the big one (Dillen) hit him first and Green hit him next, he hit him with a chunk of iron, Dillen had the leg of the bed, Green jumped above him and struck him on the head with the other piece, after they hit him they set him down on the floor where the iron plate is on the floor, heard one of them say wout hurt you that was Green said that, "little short fellow" I was so frightened went in to my cell, never saw any thing like it my life, after they struck him he was sitting on the floor with his hands stretched out, Dillen or Green said to me "keep quite," that is all they said to me, don't know how long was in my cell, when I came out of my cell saw Jerry sitting on the floor and nothing else, I went into my cell because I was frightened, I heard them say at one time "kill the ————" I heard them say that when they were in their steel cell's, both said it, Jerry was sitting on the floor and blood all around him in puddles. I gave the sheriff the irons, the next morning after the escape found them near post near the jail, right out from the kitchen door, irons shown witness, identified showed Wetzel where I found irons.

CROSS EXAMINATION.

I lived in Pike township Clearfield County, have been in jail about one year, didn't know the day of the month, year, didn't know when 4th of July came, can't read or write, I have not talked about this case, nobody told me to say anything, I knew what to say on the stand without being told, it was quite light in the jail, I was on the upper step when the defendants struck Condo, I had just gone up to top of stairs, I saw them strike Condo, Dillen struck him first, Green said he wouldn't hit Condo, after they set him down they went out of the jail, after they left I went down stairs and raised the alarm, I did once hear them say they would kill Condo, they complained all the time because they didn't get enough to eat and that is the reason they made those statements, I was in the hall, they said these things to themselves not to me or Mr. Condo.

Geo. H. Kline, lives at Oak Hall, know Green and Dillen, was in jail when they broke out, occupied No. 6 cell on second floor, same side of steel cells, they got out of their cells in the evening of July 29th, did not see them get out was in my cell when crime was committed, heard Dillen or Green say "You must not make any noise or you will get the same," I kept quiet, only part of a minute was taken up by prisoners in committing crime, don't know how Constance and Henderson got out, saw Condo lying on floor, I set him up on the floor, he didn't speak at all, lots of blood on the floor, Jerry was blood all over, could hardly recognize him, I took him out to the front door, I telephoned for a doctor, Dr. Feidt came up at once, there are distinct marks on the floor to this day in the jail, heard both prisoners say to Condo that they "would give the old bald headed ———" all that was coming to him," that was on Monday before the 29th of July, the prisoner helped to carry meals to prisoners in steel cells.

Cross examination—It was about 1 or 2 o'clock when I heard defendants say what they did about Jerry, defendants were singing, dancing and making lots of noise about that time, Jerry was on first floor when they yelled at him he didn't say anything back to defendants.

George Henderson, I am an inmate in County jail, was in cell No. 7, with Constance, knew Dillen and Green, occupied cell No. 8, five prisoners escaped jail July 29 1904, I was one of the five, Livingston unlocked my door, we both got out, saw Green and Dillen in corridor about 8 o'clock, in corridor 1 hour before Condo came in, saw them go down stairs, don't know who the first man was that went out of jail, I was last man out of jail.

Samuel Mulberger, live near jail Bellefonte, I live north of the jail was on my front porch on the 29th of July last, while sitting there I saw four or five men run along the side of the jail, one ran in to a post another into a pile of wood, I went over to the jail and I heard someone following for help, I ran in and I saw a man holding Mr. Condo on his feet near the door of the jail, we brought him to the front of the jail and as first he didn't want to lie down I got a rag and with water I washed his head which was bleeding terrible, his condition was serious, he was in his shirt sleeves.

Cross examination—I heard something like irons fall on the stones near the jail wall.

Elizabeth Mulberger, I am the wife of Samuel Mulberger, I was on my front porch on the night of the 29th, saw the same men my husband did, heard the noise of something sounded like irons falling, I saw Mr. McCullough pick the irons up just where I heard these men throw them down, I was fifty feet away. R. R. Osterle, live in Bellefonte, am a photographer, board and was at the Mulberger home on the night of July 29th, saw four men running along the jail wall that night, do not know who they were. At this point Court was adjourned until half past one o'clock.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON.

At 1 o'clock the court room was crowded to the outer doors and many were turned away. The crowd eager to see or catch a word that may come from the prisoners or attorneys.

Promptly at 1:30 the prisoners were brought into court by Sheriff Taylor, Deputy Sheriff Jackson and Guardsman Eberhart.

The jury came into court at 1:32 in charge of Thomas McCafferty.

Ira Green's wife and father sat in the bar. Mrs. Jerry Condo, daughter and son were also in court having seats near commonwealth's attorneys.

Simon McKee, (alias) Bartholomew Fleming, I have objections to any formal oath, I have conscientious scruples against taking any kind of an oath. Witness directed to take a seat by the Court.

J. W. Rightmour, County Detective, was on train night Dillen and Green were brought to Bellefonte, I had Green in charge coming to Bellefonte, Chas. R. Kurtz was with me also Thomas Caldwell. Had conversation with Green, Green knew who had him in charge; he was handcuffed to me. Green voluntarily made statement to me on train, had 7 deputies with me from Bellefonte to Mill Hall. Green said on trolley car he heard that Condo was dead.

Chas. R. Kurtz, editor of Centre Democrat testified as follows—On train from Mill Hall, talked to Green myself, Green was handcuffed to officer, told me something that Rightmour did not hear, at least I don't think so. Objection to witness testifying made by attorneys for defendants on the ground that Green was handcuffed to Rightmour and was asked questions by detective. The Court overruled the objections and allowed witness to testify. Green spoke freely on the matter, Green told me he knew Condo was dead but didn't know it until after arrested, he didn't know reward was offered, Green wanted to know if one man was killed, whether they could hang more than one man, Kurtz told him the whole "bunch" could hang.

Cross-examination—Was not a detective, he was handcuffed to Rightmour, took photograph of interior of jail, also of cell door No. 8, photos identified, witness took kodak pictures and saw them developed, took them Sunday following the tragedy, I saw cell door Friday night.

Doctor Feidt—live in Bellefonte, called to jail July 29, to see Jerry Condo, saw Jerry in the kitchen at the jail, he was bleeding, I ordered him taken up stairs, dressed his wounds, several open wounds on his head, found seven or eight distinct wounds on his skull, redressed them the second time between one and four, bleeding from back part of the head, nose, mouth and ears. There was a cerum coming from his ears, sort of a fluid, came from the coverings of the brain, found compound fracture of the skull, the wound was open to the bone or skull, it was caused by more than one blow. One fracture was over three inches in length. Dr. Hayes and Dr. Seibert and myself tried an operation Saturday afternoon July 30, nothing could be done, the bleeding of the ears would indicate a fracture of lower part of the skull. Jerry Condo died about 1 o'clock Sunday morning July 31, from injuries received by blows on head, his eyes were very black and swollen, I thought Jerry was conscious about 10 o'clock Friday night the 29th, of July, the skin of the scalp was lacerated at 7 or eight different places, there is more danger in a fracture of the skull of a man the age of Mr. Condo than of a younger person.

Dr. J. L. Seibert, physician, live in Bellefonte, saw Condo about 1 o'clock Saturday morning July 30, he was unconscious and paralyzed, indicating that he had received hard blows.

R. G. H. Hayes, physician, Bellefonte, saw Jerry Condo about 10 o'clock Saturday July 30, he was unconscious and paralyzed came from fracture of skull.

H. S. Taylor, prosecutor, Sheriff of Centre county, Deputy Jackson and myself had charge of the two irons, examined the irons, they were covered with blood and dark gray hair was mixed and knotted in the blood on the stocking which covered the one iron.

Geo. Eberhart—I live in Bellefonte, I helped move the steel cells in cells No. 7 and 8 and that a steel brace was missing from one of the cots, Mr. Jackson and myself fitted the brace to the bedstead and found that it belonged there, there are no other beds in the jail that are painted white.

District Attorney Spangler went to McKee alias Bartholomew Fleming and he exclaimed "I'm done" "I'm done" "I have nothing more to say." At this period the attorneys had a conference with the Judge, after which sometime was taken up in waiting for Mr. Naginney who was a very important witness on the side of the commonwealth. After waiting sometime the Judge ordered the commonwealth closed.

F. E. Naginney came into court and was sworn at this period as a witness for the commonwealth. I am in the undertaking business, I took charge of Mr. Condo's body, and prepared the same for burial, on his arms I saw marks made as though he had been in a struggle, I saw marks upon his body as though they had been made by the iron, I suppose the marks were an inch and a half wide, and about seven inches long. Commonwealth rests at 3:30.

DEFENSE OPENS.

Henry C. Quigley on the part of the defense presented his side of the case to the jury at five minutes of two. In his argument he did not deny that the defendants did not kill Mr. Condo but that they did not hit him with the irons that they were not lying in wait to kill Mr. Condo, but that they might secure the keys so that they might gain their freedom on account of not getting sufficient food, as did McCullough testify that they often complained of.

William Dillon, defendant called, 19 years of age, born in Clearfield county, Ansonville, parents are both dead, was small when my father died, went to live with my brother at Hastings when I was 7 years of age, stayed with him until 15 worked in brick yards, coal mines and railroading, never been in a Court House before, in jail Centre county July 29 1904 knew Jerry Condo he was turnkey he furnished us the victuals he had charge of prisoners, he locked us up between 8 and 9 p.m. escaped July 29 1904, Green and myself in same cell, we got knives at first and made saws out of them, sawed off hinge with knife, top hinge, have not seen hinge in court, sawed it off first day we were put in about one month before we got out, McCullough handed us "I" shaped iron and we used that in place of knife, we got out of cell 8.15 July 29 1904 got out before Condo came in, we went to bath room so we could make our escape, we saw him come in, McCullough came in with him, I went out of bath room and hit him with right fist and had iron in the left, we knew he carried keys, only hit him once, didn't hit him with the iron, Green then hit him on head and told him "Don't hallow and we won't hurt you," he hit him with iron in stocking, didn't leave jail because we killed Condo, never intended to kill Condo, never made any threats against him; we sang a song that had "we would kill him" in it, we never said that we would give Condo all that was coming to him; had no ill will or malice against Condo, made no resistance when captured, not armed, we surrendered to seven men in posse when captured, I didn't hit Condo with iron, Green put stocking over iron, saw it in the bath room, it was put on so it wouldn't hurt him when we struck him.

Cross examination by Mr. Orvis—Born in 1885, gave age 22 at jail, I gave Condo my age as 22, in steel cell No. 8, put in by Condo and Sheriff Jackson, we made complaint about our food, made angry remarks at Jerry just in fun, we never swore at him, had heavy iron in cell with us for 3 weeks, concealed near window in the wall, Green took iron off bed in our cell, it was put on by boy, we had it but one day, the stocking did not belong to either Green or myself, don't know who tied it, removed iron from bed in forenoon. The iron in stocking is too heavy to hit a man with, I pulled door back and Green got out first, I got out last, went to bath room and stayed there from one half to three quarters of an hour, bath room door was not locked, saw Condo coming into jail, we started out of bath room when Condo was on 3rd step, I went out first with heavy iron, I was in my stocking feet, Green had on his shoes, I struck Condo first with flat back of my head, then went to bath room to put on my shoes, took off shoes so no one would hear me, I think Livingston took iron outside of jail, I saw Green hit Condo two times on top of head, showed jury how Green held iron in stocking. He didn't hit him very hard, no understanding as to who should hit him, I knew Green was going to hit him, I heard Green tell Condo "keep quiet and I won't hurt you." When I hit him Condo looked at me and said "what's up," Livingston opened Henderson's door, I don't know how the marks on Condo's body got there, I cannot tell how so many marks got on his head, no one in jail knew we were going to get out except Henderson, we wrote him a note, note shown witness, never saw note before, when we left jail we went out front door turned to the right of jail, don't know if any one ran into hitching post, Livingston said he took irons out.

Ira Green, called, 23 years of age Aug 1st, born in Elk county Pa. I came to Centre county then went to Coopers town, Zion, Millsburg, Wallace Run, then to Unionville then back to Wallace Run. Married 18th day of March 1904, broke jail July 29th 1904, in cell No. 8, we made saw out of knife and sawed hinge off door in jail I went out first then Dillon, it was about 8.15 when we got out, talked to Henderson went to bath room got piece of iron in cell and put stocking around it, took it to bath room with me was going to push Jerry away from door and escape. Dillon hit Jerry with his fist first and only once, had iron in left hand, didn't hit him with iron, I hit Condo several times with iron in stocking, I told Condo to keep quiet and I wouldn't hurt him, Livingston got keys and unlocked cell door No. 7, Livingston unlocked jail door, we had no intentions to kill Condo, only to stun him and get out, never made any threats against him had no grudge or illwill against Mr. Condo, he was a larger man than I, I weigh 145 lbs. I was put in jail when I was 15 years old for stealing whiskey, my parents live at Gum Stump, I did not know Condo was dead or killed until I got into Lock Haven jail, I put the iron in the stocking so that it would not hurt the old ———, Green showed the jury how he held the iron, I don't know who the stocking belonged to, I did not resist when arrested, when the men came up to arrest us I said are you fishing? One man said "No" I said you must be hunting cranes. Mr. Harvey said I guess you are the fellows we are looking for and made us walk ahead of the guns to the trolley car where we were taken to the Lock Haven jail. The last we saw Livingston was at Eagleville, he left us there.

Cross examined by Mr. Orvis.—Put in jail June 21, 04, cut hinge soon after we got into steel cell, we sawed at hinge quite often, only short time at once, had case knife, we both cut it in shape of a saw, McCullough gave us the iron, we had it hid away above window in the wall, pulled it out with a string, we broke small iron off bed, had iron in stocking from morning we broke out, slid down iron post at rear end of the jail, I then went to bath room, Dillen came there first, we sat on edge of bath tub about three quarters of an hour, we talked, door was half way open leading from bath room, could not see any one coming into jail, Dillen was in stocking feet and I had mine on, Dillen went out first I went out about 10 feet back of Dillon, Dillen's blow did not effect Condo very much, I hit Condo several times on his head, then sat him down on the floor, Condo hit me with a key and then I hit him again, I tried to put him in cell up stairs but he was too much for me, Condo groaned when Dillen hit him, saw blood on his head, I don't know whether anyone else hit him or not Livingston took keys from Condo when he was going up stairs, we didn't tell anyone to keep quiet except Condo, I might have told some one that Dillen hit Condo with iron we sang and danced in our cell, I swore at Jerry one morning because I didn't get any breakfast, I was making some noise, Dillen was also dancing and making noise, that's why we did not get breakfast, I handed piece of paper to Sheriff Taylor, this is the paper. I can't read or write, can write my name, I told sheriff that there was a lot of other notes in the cell. The prisoners carried them to Henderson, Dillon wrote notes in our cell, didn't know where notes were sent, some may have been sent to Captain Taylor. We didn't try to escape, could have done so if we wanted to, Mr. Harvey was the first man to come up to us, then another fellow with a blue shirt and a pipe, we were about 8 feet from posse when they first saw us, there were 3 in first posse and then two or 8 more came.

Scott Norris live at LaJoue, Clearfield, Co, lumberman and school teacher I know William Dillen, have known him for 16 years, his reputation for a peaceable, law-abiding citizen is good, he is truthful. He worked for me last fall and this spring, he is perfectly honest, his character has never been questioned until just now, never heard anyone say anything for or against Dillon.

W. C. Mans, live at LaJoue, team driver, work in mines, knew William Dillon for several years. His testimony on the question of honesty etc., is practically the same as proceeding witness, I am a brother-in-law of Wm. Dillon.

S. M. Rice, Bellefonte, lived in Altoona before coming to Bellefonte, Dillon and I railroaded together in Altoona about two years ago, no relation to Dillon we boarded together I met him at Altoona, never heard his reputation discussed, don't know if it is good or bad.

At 5:05 Defendants rest. No Rebuttal.

Evidence closed on both sides 5:10.

Court adjourned to 8:30 Saturday morning.

SATURDAY MORNING.

Saturday morning beamed bright and fair with the sun shining warm, the morbid crowd that had been thronging the Court of Justice the past week, began wending their way to this place again as early as 7:30. The beginning of the ending of this most exciting murder trial was heard, when the jury came into the court room at 8:20 looking as though they had rested comfortably. On this jury that held the lives of these two men in their decision are three from Bellefonte, Messrs. J. H. Sands, Jacob Wagner and Geo. Garbrick.

At 8:30 the prisoners Dillen and Green accompanied by Deputy Sheriff Jackson and Guardsman Geo. Eberhart arrived on the scene, before the court and jury.

Green retained the same old nerve he has had ever since his arrest, and was as indifferent as though he was not connected with the heinous crime that he is.

Dillen was just the opposite, he is much concerned and interested and aids his attorneys very materially with information. He seemed very nervous and often shook as though he had a nervous chill, whether from the cold or fright we are unable to say. At 8:40 Mrs. Condo and Miss Taylor took seats inside the bar. Mrs. Condo seemed very much depressed. Sometime was taken arguing different points of law which were made by the defendants attorneys.

The attorneys agreed as to the argument of the case to the jury. Mr. Chambers opened on the part of the commonwealth he was followed by Mr. Dale and Ex-Judge A. O. Furst. Mr. Spangler finished the argument for the commonwealth.

At 8:50 Col. Edward R. Chambers began his eloquent address, and with much feeling he presented his case to the jury. He cleverly argued to them how, these five prisoners had escaped jail and through their escape how Mr. Condo's life was taken, to accomplish their daring act. He explained how they escaped from their cell by the means of using common table knives made into saws, how one witness would contradict the other in regards to the time they got these knives and broke the hinge off. One or the other was not telling the truth. He explained how they were afraid to go down the steps to the bath room, as they would be seen by anyone who might be in the hall-way, so they slid down the iron polls. He said McCullough knew what was going to happen, and that he was as much to blame as the others, he told how rapidly McCullough came into jail and ran up the stairs, and how McCullough had given them the iron hinge, they were lying in wait to kill poor old Jerry, and Dillen was selected as the man to strike the first blow, at this point Mr. Chambers began calling Dillen and Green towards and these declarations were objected to by the defendants counsel and the objection sustained by the court. Mr. Chambers continued to say how Dillen carried the hinge and if he did not strike the old man, who made the marks on his body, if it were not he, for he carried the iron, in a very pathetic manner Mr. Chambers described how they struck the old man, how they dragged him down the stairs and left him there to die. Livingston is the other man in the drama as he took the keys from the old man and unlocked the cell door No. 7 and they all ran out. He finished his argument in a manner that brought tears to many eyes in the court room as he spoke of how one of these boys will drag down with his in this crime, a dear mother, father and a wife, the other two noble brothers, and on the other side how the widow of this old soldier will go down to the grave a heart broken wife and mother.

Clement Dale, attorney for the defendants was the first to argue for the defense. He spoke of the fair and impartial way they had been treated by the commonwealth attorneys. The feeling and clamor had died down, and that the feeling against them is not the same as when Mr. Condo was killed. Mr. Dale argued that the defendants didn't know Sheriff Taylor was out of town, that Sheriff Jackson was down town, that the family were all out of town, he claimed that it was not their purpose to kill the old man, only to gain their liberty, that the bath room was not as dark as the commonwealth attorneys had pictured the same. Mr. Dale brought out some very excellent points in his argument for the defense and in connection he said, the man Livingston who is at large is much to blame for he was instrumental in securing the keys and freeing them from the jail. He said they made no resistance when arrested, they made no fight and surrendered to their captors, when Mr. Dale began speaking about his client Green he asked the jury to look into his face and they could see for themselves that he is not a hardened criminal. At this time Green began to weep as did also his father. I know gentlemen of the jury, you do not seek revenge, that you are here in the interest of the commonwealth, and that you will take this case and that you will not find these men guilty of murder in the 1st degree.

At 10:30 ex-Judge A. O. Furst began his argument. He spoke of presiding at and representing twenty homicide cases in this and adjoining districts and never in one of these has the highest executive of the county been the prosecutor, I do not deny that a horrible crime has been committed. Murder in 1st and 2nd degrees was clearly defined by the Ex-Judge, he dealt on the Botkin case of California, and the Patrick Campbell case of Portage, as murder in the 1st degree, these boys under the facts in this case are guilty of murder in 2nd degree and they are only to be convicted of the crime which they committed. Mr. Orvis said in his introduction that the jury and court would not be held accountable for the decision made in this case, but Judge Furst argued differently and said, to a certain extent they are held accountable and that they should be just in weighing the evidence. Your duty is not confined to the question that a crime has been committed, we acknowledge one has taken place, but is it according to the evidence produced murder in the 1st or 2nd degree. The boys no more intended to commit a murder than you, or I, their first thought while in prison was how can we get out of this jail, the getting of those irons was not with the intent to kill, but to assist them to escape, they must have a key to get out the last door and through Mr. Condo was the only way they could get one, and they only wanted to stun him until they secured the same. Judge Furst spoke very touchingly on the lives of those in court connected with this case, but he said he didn't want these words to weigh with the jury only to hold to the evidence. He spoke of the testimony given by McCullough as coming from an imbecile, and that his evidence could hardly be accepted. There was no evidence produced by the commonwealth that they wanted to take the old man's life, he spoke of how Green testified that he struck Jerry Condo several times and that he told him to keep quiet and he wouldn't hurt him, and that Dillen had only hit him once and that time with his fist, and that the testimony on both sides was not convicting of murder in the 1st degree and that he hoped they would not convict either men through prejudice or fear, I do not ask you to violate the law, but consider consciences by the evidence in the case and render a verdict according to your convictions. At the conclusion of Judge Furst's argument that closed the part of the defense and at that period court adjourned until 1:30.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

Again the Court room was crowded at an early hour. The interest was so great, that people were discussing the subject openly and in loud voices, but when the Court opened the room became quiet and all was silent.

District Attorney Newton B. Spangler who has worked earnestly and zealously picking every bit of evidence that might be of benefit to commonwealth in prosecuting their case, began the closing argument for the commonwealth at 1:30.

He cited a great many strong points, laid down by the Supreme Court, which weighed very materially upon the case.

In McCullough testimony he drew out that he was not an imbecile, only an uneducated man who was unable to understand what a cross examination was, he spoke of Kline's testimony. The doctors and putting it all together he claimed that it was a premeditated, planned, deliberate murder and if they would go according to the evidence produced by the commonwealth they would find a verdict of murder in the first degree.

As both sides had finished their arguments to the jury, Judge Love laid down the law and defined the crime of murder, and instructed them clearly as to their duty as jurors.

At 2:45 the case was given into the hands of the 12 men who were to determine according to the evidence given whether these men were guilty of murder in the 1st degree or in the 2nd degree.

SUNDAY MORNING.

At 7:30 large crowds of citizens began mobilizing on the square in front of the Court House, each man having his own opinion as to what verdict the jury would find.

At 9:05 "Uncle Tommy" Donachy was seen hurrying across the Court House porch and said the jury had arrived at a verdict. Judge Love who was in his office in the Orders Exchange was sent for. The excitement that had been moderate ran up to a high pitch and the crowd began wending their way toward the Court House. Judge Love had ordered that only the attorneys and Court officials should be admitted, but seeing how anxious the people were to see the prisoners and hear the verdict he recalled the order and all who wanted could enter the Temple of Justice, inside of five minutes after the doors were swung open the room was crowded and every available inch was occupied.

At 9:22 the jury looking haggard and worn out, entered the jury box after being nearly 20 hours. Judge Love took his seat with M. I. Gardner clerk of the court in his place. At 9:25 Dillen and Green came up the steps of "sights" and entered the Court Room by the rear entrance and took their respective places beside their counsel Furst, Quigley and Dale. They looked anxious and seemed very nervous. At 9:26 Mr. Gardner arose and said Gentlemen of the Jury have you arrived at a verdict, to which question Mr. Sands the foreman chosen said "We have."

The roll of the jurymen was then called and each man answered "here" as his name was mentioned, after which each man was asked separately to announce his decision. The roll was called as follows:

REPRESENTATIVE MEN ON THE WORLD'S FAIR

What Distinguished Statesmen and Others Say of the Educational and Inspiring Exposition at St. Louis.

The public utterances of distinguished men who have visited the world's fair have but one note, and that of emphatic praise. Here are some of their comments:

Hon. John Hay, secretary of state: "I have never seen nor heard of anything so fine."

Hon. Leslie M. Shaw, secretary of the treasury: "Any father of a bright boy can afford to send him to the Fair simply to study any one of at least a thousand exhibits."

Hon. Benjamin B. Odell, governor of New York: "St. Louis has been badly misrepresented by accounts which say that her weather is unbearable. The Fair is wonderful."

Hon. George C. Pardee, governor of California: "The governor of the Golden State, who has spent all his life within her borders, finds that he knew only a little about his state until he came to the Fair and saw all her varied products assembled together."

Hon. Albert B. Cummins, governor of Iowa: "The Louisiana Purchase Exposition is on the grandest scale of any exposition the world has ever seen."

M. Paul Dupuy, editor of Le Petit Parisien of Paris, France: "I admire the Exposition for its immensity, its spirit of the sublime, its general beauty and its completeness."

Prince George of Bavaria: "I have never seen anything prettier than the St. Louis World's Fair buildings when outlined at night with their millions of electric lights."

Hon. Louis E. McComas of Maryland: "The greatest Fair in the world."

Hon. John F. Dryden of New Jersey: "The people have no idea of the greatness of the Exposition. Every American should see it."

T. P. Shanta, president of the Clover Leaf route of Chicago: "The Fair is a big success and will continue to become a greater success as it progresses."

An Animal Story For Little Folks

A True Patriot

Toby was the baby of the family, and, though they made a clown of him, he was no fool.

More than that, Toby was a great patriot.

His trainer had dressed him up in the stars and stripes, and Toby was very proud of that.

"Greatest day of my life when I got into them jeans," he used to say. "Mean to stand up for the flag, and anybody who steps on that suit of mine will have to step on me," all of which was literally true.

One day the clown came into the ring dressed as a Spaniard, with a funny Spanish hat on one side of his little head.

"Ought to be ashamed of himself," argued Toby, "to wear such a rig as that in the presence of the stars and stripes. I just won't act with him; that's all." And Toby sat down on his ample haunches.

"Get up, you!" shouted the clown.

But Toby never winked.

"G'wan out or here," cried the little fellow, "or I'll bang yer one!"

This was too much for Toby.

"He's insulting the American flag," he muttered. "I don't care for myself, but no feller in the Spanish rig is goin' to hit this flag." And he put back his two enormous ears.

"Hit me if you will, but spare Old Glory," said Toby in true Barbara Fritchie style.

The clown was angry. He brought his whip down on Toby—thwack! Toby knocked him down with his left ear and spanked him with his right. As he did so he cried, "That's Manila Bay, and that's Santiago!"

They never saw that Spanish rig again.—Atlanta Constitution.

FARMERS' MONTH AT WORLD'S FAIR

Biggest Department of the Great Exposition Ready For the Inspection of the Army of Men Who Made Its Creation Possible.

Now that crops have been or are being laid by, the farmer prepares for his trip to the World's Fair, a treat that has long been promised him and for which he has patiently waited. No exposition has offered so many inducements for the farmer's presence as this one at St. Louis, nor has any previous exposition given the prominence and space to the subject of agriculture.

August and September are ostensibly the farmer's months at the Exposition, for it is at this season that the agriculture exhibits are the freshest and best. Products of the new crops are pouring into the booths from every state in the Union, and additions are constantly being made to the gorgeous display.

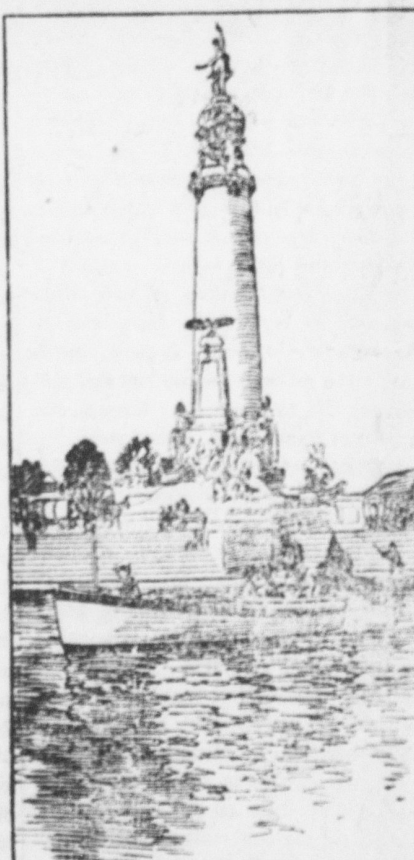

Headquarters for visiting farmers may be found in every state section of the great Agriculture Palace, but for their special convenience there has just been completed a Grange House, situated in the south end of the building. It is equipped with a reception room, ladies' retiring rooms and check rooms, where parcels may be left free of charge. Here will be kept a list of moderate priced rooms to aid visiting farmers and their families in procuring accommodations.

The largest building on the grounds is the Palace of Agriculture, covering twenty acres, while the Palace of Horticulture near by covers about a third as much space. These two immense structures are filled with exhibits of the farm, garden and orchard of the most extensive and elaborate character, every state in the Union and most of the principal countries of the world being represented.

Agriculture is given more prominence than any other department at the Exposition, the paramount importance of this great industry having been fully appreciated from the very beginning of the World's Fair movement.

About seventy acres of ground are covered by the agriculture and horticulture department at the Fair, large outdoor spaces being devoted to this industry. Outside there are growing crops, trees and flowers, an instructive six acre farm maintained by the United States Government Plant Industry, and gardens in all parts of the grounds.

There are more exhibits in the Agriculture building than in any other section of the Exposition. This building is considered by many people the most interesting part of the World's Fair. The exhibits in the palaces of Agriculture and Horticulture constitute a display vast enough and instructive enough to occupy the attention of visitors for many days. Nothing to compare with them was ever attempted before. They are the climax of several decades of educational work which is placing farming on a high plane and is making scientific agriculture a pleasing reality.

The conspicuous role played by agriculture at the World's Fair should bring untold benefits and wealth to the farming community of the world and impress all farmers with the importance and dignity of their calling.

Passing through these colossal buildings, studying the attractive exhibits and fascinated by the bewildering encyclopaedia of rural life which is spread out before his eyes, the World's Fair visitor is impressed with the important part the farmer plays in the great world of industry, and every farmer who views these interesting exhibits is given a new pride in his vocation filled with inspiration and impressed with new ideas in harmony with the progressive strides that farming has been making for the past few years. The visit will give an insight into up to date farming on the most approved plan and will bring new hopes and blessings to the farm.

WAGE EARNERS AT THE FAIR

Prominent Men Planning to Help Workers See the Great Exposition.

Wage earners of America are to see the World's Fair by tens of thousands under the auspices of the National Civic Federation. A new bureau of the Federation has just been established at St. Louis upon the World's Fair grounds. Back of the movement are Grover Cleveland, David R. Francis and others. Plans are making to have a vast number of the wage earners of the United States see the World's Fair, the most glorious spectacle of the age and the most influential factor in the education of the American citizen.

The bureau is in charge of Miss Gertrude Beeks, secretary of the Federation's welfare department, of which Mr. H. H. Vreeland, head of the street railway system of New York city, is chairman. The bureau headquarters is in the east end of the Palace of Transportation, on the ground floor. The Exposition management is in hearty accord with this movement on the part of the Federation to induce the large manufacturers and other employers of labor to provide ways and means for the wage earners of America to visit the Exposition. President Francis is displaying personal interest in the undertaking by affording the Federation every facility for the consummation of its efforts, and in this connection he has directed Theodore Hardee, assistant to the secretary, to co-operate with Miss Beeks and Ralph M. Easley, chairman of the Federation's executive council, in every possible way.

The Exposition management has also equipped this bureau with clerical assistance and a full supply of World's Fair literature. The bureau will be used as headquarters for all wage earners coming to the Exposition under its auspices. The aim of the Federation is to make it feasible for the largest possible proportion of wage earners to visit St. Louis and see the World's Fair. It will see that they are met at the depot by responsible persons and conducted to suitable lodgings, where they will be treated fairly.

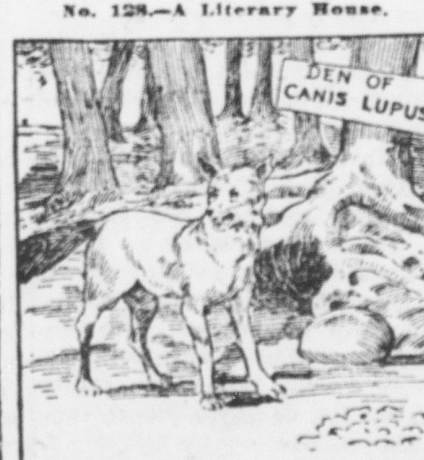

There will also be furnished, free of charge, appropriate itineraries indicating the points of interest to be seen within a limit of one week, which is about the average time each party will spend here. It will also indicate the objects of special interest to various craftsmen in their particular lines, so that they may devote as much time as possible to the objects of peculiar interest to them. These and many other efforts will be made to help all wage earners to enjoy the benefits of this great Exposition comfortably and at an expense within their means.

"The Hand That Rocks The Cradle Rules The World."

MOTHER'S love starts a man or woman on the right path. The right remedy at the right time fits a mother for the ordeal. Motherhood is often looked forward to with feelings of great dread by most women. At such a time when she is nervous, dyspeptic, irritable and in need of a uterine tonic—something which will calm the nervous system through the special organs, and a strength builder, she will find Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription just what is needed. Here is a medicine that has stood the test of a third of a century with approval, in that time it has sold more largely than any other remedy put up specially for women's weaknesses. It is guaranteed by the proprietors not to contain a particle of alcohol—which could only do harm to a sensitive system.

WHY WOMEN SHOULD CONFIDE IN A MAN.

It is much easier for a woman to confide in the average man than in the average woman. She knows that the man will respect her confidences and keep them to himself. He is strong, has more experience of the world and can help the woman who needs advice. Without a perfect medical understanding there can be no helpful advice, women should not trust their delicate constitutions in the hands of unskilled persons. It requires a thorough medical education to appreciate and understand the womanly organism. When a woman has ill and pains that she cannot bear—when life seems dark for every woman, she should confide her troubles to a physician of standing in the community, or one who has a national reputation. Certainly it would not be the part of wisdom to confide in an ignorant person without medical education simply because she was a woman. There is every reason why she should write to some great specialist, one who has made the diseases of women a specialty for a third of a century, like Dr. R. V. Pierce, founder of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y. All correspondence is held sacredly confidential, and he gives his advice free and without charge.

SINGLE AND MARRIED WOMEN

Very often find that it is repugnant to their feelings to consult their family physician. In such a case they can put perfect confidence in Dr. Pierce, who has made such a success in the treatment of women's diseases, for he will give the very best advice possible and without cost. To grow beautiful, healthy and happy should be the desire of every woman. It is then possible to hold a husband and to make home happy and bring contentment to it. In most cases Dr. R. V. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will fit the needs and put the body in healthy condition.

So sure of it is the World's Dispensary Medical Association, of Buffalo, N. Y., proprietors of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, that they offer

A $500 REWARD

For women who cannot be cured of Leucorrhoea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription restores weak and sick women to sound health, by caring the local womanly diseases which are generally responsible for the failure of the general health. A woman's entire being is centered in her womanly nature. When the delicate womanly organism is attacked by disease; when there is irregularity or a disagreeable drain; when inflammation burns and ulcers gnaw, the general health will reflect the progress of disease, in increasing weakness, nervousness, backache, headache, loss of appetite and sleeplessness.

WILLIAM'S REUNION.

A Large Crowd in Attendance, and the Day Was An Ideal One.

That the fifth annual Williams reunion which was held in the beautiful grove of J. Q. Miles near Martha, on last Saturday, was the largest and best ever yet held cannot be doubted by any one who attended, an ideal day, convenient railroad accommodations, an excellent program, and excellent management by the president and his committees all contributed to the perfect harmony and success of this growing institution. Various estimates place the attendance at from 1500 to 2000 people, every east bound train brought scores of people from Clearfield, Blair, Huntingdon, Allegheny and other western counties, and the west bound trains conveyed the friend and members of this class from Clinton, Lycoming and other eastern counties. More than a dozen counties were represented in all.

At 10:30, the reunion was formally opened by a few fitting remarks by the president, W. H. Williams, of Port Matilda; followed by music by Rev. Free's orchestra, prayer by Rev. W. B. Cox, of Bellefonte, and short addresses by others, but the predominating object of this hospitable host of Williams and their friends was revealed when the noon hour arrived and long tables groaning, almost, under the load of viands and luxuries were seen extending in every direction. Generosity, Hospitality and sociability seemed to be the underlying motive of these generous people, and the benefits and pleasure arising from these annual gatherings cannot be over-estimated. In the afternoon short addresses were made by Revs. Durkey, of Port Matilda, Lathe, of Milesburg, Cox of Bellefonte, and Prof. John D. Meyers of Bellefonte, interspersed by music from orchestra and male quartette.

The election of officers resulted in the selection of W. S. Williams Pres., J. R. Williams, vice pres., Ida R. Williams recording secy., G. G. Fink corresponding secy., Maggie Williams, poet; Rev. E. L. Williams historian, and John Q. Miles, treasurer.

A very interesting game of ball was played by the Scotia and Unionville teams which resulted in a score of 10-7 in favor of Scotia. The line up of the teams was as follows:

Unionville—T. Calhoun, J. Lane, R. Colmey, Ralph VanValin, M. Mosser, C. Rowan, R. VanValin, A. VanValin, H. Mosser.

Scotia—Frank Fields, E. Markley, Roy Farber, R. Fields, Jess Pennington, Chas. Douglass, Lester Harpeter, Andy Tomko, B. Mattem.

The batters for Scotia were Roy Farber and Frank Fields.
